REVIVAL IS INTERESTING MANY PEOPLE

Large Audience at Central Christian Church on Opening Night

GOOD MUSIC HEARD

Rev. Cole Preaches Strong Sermon on Theme, "Who Is This Christ?"

By O. L. KILBORN
There was a large audience at Central Christian church of Glendale Monday night and the revival campaign is now well started. The opening song service by the Corner Trio was most inspiring. The songs were all sung with a will and the reading by Mrs. Helen Conner Nern was very affecting. Any who play instruments are urged to join the orchestra to be led by Mr. Nern, who is a fine cornetist.

The sermon by Rev. Cole was on the theme, "Who Is This Christ?" It was suggested by the account in John's gospel of the imprisoned John the Baptist sending some of his disciples to Jesus with the question, "Art thou He that was to come or look we for another?" Commenting on Jesus' indirect answer to this searching query from the despondent forerunner, Rev. Cole said: "Jesus did not make any boastful reply but simply pointed to what He had done. The lame walk, the blind receive their sight, the lepers are cleansed and the poor have the gospel preached to them." And so today the Christ follower is known and judged not by the services he does but by the love he does in service to mankind. Christianity has accomplished its wonderful work in the world not by the purity of its founder but by the serving of the weak and suffering by those who have devoted their lives to it. And while we ever lift up the Christ and Him crucified, we emphasize most His resurrection from the grave and the fact that He is the Redeemer of men from their sins."

Tonight's sermon subject is "Why I am a Christian," and Rev. Cole earnestly urges all who claim to not believe in the Christ to come out and hear his reasons for the faith that is in him.

The Corner Trio will have more surprises in their song service which will be enjoyable to all.

DR. RUGH ATTACKS MODERN SYSTEM OF EDUCATION

Tells Teachers' Institute Basis Should Be Behavior in Knowledge

Dr. Charles Rugh of the department of education of the state university at Berkeley was the speaker at the afternoon session of the teachers' institute held at Glendale High Monday afternoon. His theme was "A New Definition of Education," and he challenged the present methods of teaching in the public schools which, he declared, are archaic. They were borrowed, he said, from the Germans and should be superseded by a system of our own based on American psychology.

"Education," he said, "is the progressive improvement of the learner's behavior" and "behavior" was defined as "the separate system of responses the agent makes to a particular situation."

The point made was that educators have been stressing knowledge, putting all the emphasis upon that and not enough upon character. Said he: "We have had a fool theory that if we teach children to know, they will do. It doesn't follow. You will live to see a time when children will be developed in terms of the powers they have instead of in terms of reading, writing, and arithmetic." If we can make knowledge function in behavior, what may we not come to in this district.

"In America we are going to build a school system that is pragmatic, that is built on life, and not simply on knowledge."

The speaker indulged himself in some humorous exaggerations to entertain his audience and enforce his points, and followed the Socratic method, often insisting on a reply as though it were a class room although the response was hesitating. To the non professional, it was all very interesting and spelled hope for the child of the future who will perhaps have his powers naturally developed instead of being made a hopper through which knowledge will be fed.

GROWTH OF THE ORGANIZATION IN IMPORTANCE

Originally Formed at Birthday Celebration of Mrs. Philip Parker, It Has Become Most Important in Influence in the City

By GERTRUDE GIBBS

Today the Tuesday Afternoon club of this city celebrates its Charter Day and as a part of that celebration is laying the cornerstone of its first real club home, at the corner of Lexington drive and Central avenue.

The organization had its humble beginning in a social function which Mrs. Philip Parker gave January 9, 1898, in celebration of her birthday, and, reckoned from that date, it will be 25 years old before it takes possession of its much desired home.

It has been a long wait, but who that was present on that occasion dreamed it would one day be housed in the beautiful structure in which the corner stone is to be laid or that it would have a membership so close to 1,000. Not until 1904 was it formally organized as the "Tuesday Afternoon club," and another four years rolled around before it was duly incorporated and received its charter November 10, 1908, having then about 70 members. Of these, 28 still retain their membership.

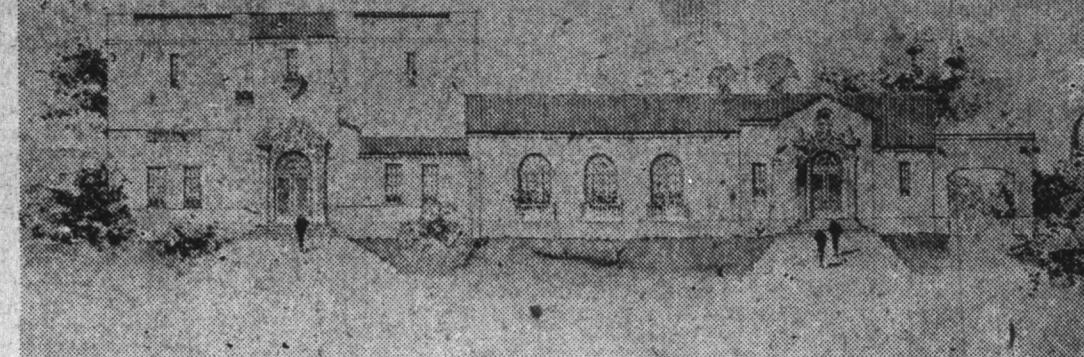

In the years since 1904, twelve matrons have served as presidents, Mrs. Frank G. Taylor, Mrs. Robert A. Blackburn, Mrs. Edgar W. Pack, Mrs. Martha Morris, Mrs. Mary Gridley Braly, Mrs. Alphonso W. Tower (1911-12, and also 1919-20), Mrs. Raymond Chase, Mrs. M. M. Jones, Mrs. H. E. Bartlett, Mrs. William W. Ramsey, and Mrs. C. E. Hutchinson. Mrs. Daniel Campbell now fills the office, and has been an active member since 1910. Mrs. E. H. Willford, elected in June, 1920, was called to another state, and therefore resigned before the club year opened.

The first regular official roster seems very small in comparison with the present one, viz., Mrs. F. W. Taylor, president; Mrs. D. W. Hunt, vice president; Mrs. M. W. Lorber, secretary; Mrs. J. M. Bunker, treasurer. Associated with Mrs. Campbell on the present board of directors are: Mrs. A. H. Montgomery, first vice president; Mrs. C. W. Houston, second vice president; Mrs. John C. Dunn, recording secretary; Mrs. Frank Ayers, corresponding secretary; Mrs. M. E. Plasterer, treasurer, and directors, Mesdames H. E. Bartlett, J. T. Crampton, Andrew P. Findlay, E. W. W. Haywood, O. E. Von Owen, and John Robert White.

Assisting these officers are about thirty committees, of which three are of special importance, viz., the program committee, of which Mrs. Freeman Kelley is chairman; ways and means committee, of which Mrs. A. H. Montgomery is chairman; and the building committee which originally numbered 21 past presidents and members of ways and means committee but which for the expediting of business has been reduced to an executive building committee of which Mrs. C. E. Hutchinson, past president, is chairman, and Mesdames H. E. Bartlett, Daniel Campbell, A. P. Findlay and A. M. Hunt are members.

The committee last named and the ways and means committee are shouldering heavy burdens this year and carrying them with a courage and ability that commands admiration. No work has been too arduous to daunt them, and no method of luring dollars to the club treasury has been overlooked.

FRENZIED FINANCE IN ELECTRIC LIGHT

In our today's "Editorials by the People" column, there appears a letter from Mr. Masak, a Glendale citizen, regarding the cost of electricity in Glendale.

This letter has been submitted to the city authorities and they take exception to some of the statements. In Mr. Masak's letter, among other statements, he states that Glendale purchases electrical energy from the Southern California Edison company for less than one cent per kilowatt hour, and sells it to Glendale citizens at a price of 14 cents per kilowatt hour.

The city officials claim: First, that the city pays 1 cent per kilowatt hour and sells it on a base rate of 5 cents, after the minimum amount of seven kilowatts has been used, grading down to 3 cents, when more than 207 kilowatts are used; second, that the consumers are charged nothing extra for collection services; third, that the Glendale rates are lower than those charged by the Edison company.

The Glendale Daily Press believes that:

If the city pays as high as 1 cent per kilowatt hour to the Southern California Edison company, it is paying too much, for we know of cities where electrical energy is sold to the consumer at this rate—and this particularly in a city where coal has cost as much as $8 per ton. Surely Glendale should buy at a lower rate. While the selling price to the large consumer may figure 5 cents per kWh., or lower—to the small consumer, the majority of users in Glendale, it figures in a great many cases, not 14 cents as claimed, but 16 cents per kWh.

For example, the householder who used during the month 7 kWh. pays the minimum charge of 80 cents, and in addition an arbitrary charge of 35 cents, which makes a total of $1.15, or .1642 per kWh. The city does not explain how it arrives at the 80-cent rate, but says it is a flat charge. As regards the 35-cent charge, the following notation is printed on the bills: "Note—35 cents increase in minimum on electric meters, as per Ord. No. 558, goes to general budget fund and not to public service department."

So, while the city claims the rate of charge is only 5 cents per kWh., after adding the arbitrary charges, the rate advances from 14 to 16 cents per kWh. In looking up Ordinance No. 558, we find this was an emergency ordinance, passed to raise needed money at the date it was passed. Surely, the emergency is over now, for in checking over the income of the city we find that the city's income this year amounts to $352,511.55, against $166,316.20 last year, or $186,199.35 increase, which figures more than double.

The special tax of 35 cents per month on electric meters adds $57,334.40 more to the city's annual income, for there are 8,832 meters. A total annual income of $389,845.95, or 185 per cent increase over last year.

A motion was made in the council meeting of October 26 to do away with the arbitrary charge of 35 cents, but for some reason not explained to the Glendale citizens, this has not been done. Why?

The Glendale officials have tried to place the responsibility of the increase on the county assessor's office, and not assume any of this tax increase as their blame. The fact is that in the face of an increase in valuation, which was known to them, the city officials increased our city rate from last year's rate of $1.30 to $1.55 this year, and in addition still collect from the Glendale citizens 35 cents each month on their light bills.

That the people are desirous of economy was shown in the recent election, and our city officials can do no less than to cut off from the light bills the 35 cent charge. Will they do it? Let's see.

been secured, a bank loan of $9000, was obtained on the property which was used as a first payment on the present site, consisting of four lots valued at $17,000. Within a few months the Brand boulevard holdings were sold for $30,000.

The building has been located on the club lots and the remaining one could be disposed of at an excellent figure, but the business advisers of the building committee have opposed it, saying it is too valuable an asset to part with now.

The value of the Tuesday Afternoon club to the community should not be measured by its material assets alone. Besides its regular fortnightly programs it has encouraged the formation of sections which provide for development along so many lines that the interests of all can be met. Nine sections are now functioning with curators as follows: Arts and crafts, Mrs. Fred Deal; Bible study, Mrs. E. Lyon; dramatic, Mrs. Benjamin Holbrook; literary, Mrs. J. E. Sargent; maids and matrons, Mrs. Julian S. Hayward; music, Mrs. Warren Roberts; parliamentary law, Mrs. C. A. Brandstater; Shakespeare, Mrs. Walter W. Jones.

All of these organizations with in the main organization are active units working together for the financing of the club as well as for its intellectual and social betterment, and all will fill important parts in the big Society Circus and Club benefit to be given Saturday afternoon and evening at the clubhouse of the Elks, who are generously playing the part of big brothers to a feminine organization.

In building for the future the club has more in mind than the needs of its own membership. It is striving to provide a social center for Glendale's young people, which will radiate a healthful influence in the community. For that reason it feels no embarrassment in any appeal it may make for the backing of Glendale's citizens.

The charter day program to be given at the Masonic Temple this afternoon will open at 1:30 with community singing by Hugo Kirchner and will be followed by a program of music provided by members of the music section, under Mrs. Warren Roberts, grouped under the general title, "In a Garden." At its conclusion an adjournment will be taken to the new clubhouse where the ceremonial in connection with the laying of the corner stone will take place and where addresses will be made by Mrs. Thomas Exley, vice president of the State Federation of Women's Clubs, and by John Hyde Always of this city, who has always been the friend and patron of women's organizations.

The purpose of this meeting will be for the consideration and adoption of the constitution and by-laws, by the organization, which were drawn up by a committee consisting of Louis Badouin, R. Streit, Mr. Parker, Nathan Newby, and Mrs. Farrell.

The regular meeting of the West Glendale Improvement association will be held in the Columbus Avenue grammar school tonight at 8 o'clock.

L. A. COUNTY TO PAVE GLENDALE BOULEVARD

Supervisor Wright Notifies Secretary Rhoades of Intention

James M. Rhoades, secretary of the Glendale Chamber of Commerce, is in receipt of a letter from Henry Wright, County Supervisor, which reads as follows:

"Dear Mr. Rhoades: Knowing the keen interest which your chamber of commerce and citizens generally have in the improvement of Glendale boulevard within the city of Los Angeles, near the Glendale reservoir, I am pleased to advise you that at a conference between the Board of Supervisors and the Board of Public Works of the city of Los Angeles on Monday, an agreement was reported that the county would spend the sum not to exceed $10,000 in the permanent improvement of this piece of boulevard.

"Please be assured that I shall make every effort to procure early action by the engineers of the two bodies. Looking to immediate repair of this street."

HENRY W. WRIGHT,
County Supervisor.

This is the rough bill coming out of Edendale which has been so disagreeable. The Glendale Chamber of Commerce deserves much credit for they have been working toward this end for some time and the improvement of this boulevard will be a great help to motorists going to and from Glendale.

XMAS CELEBRATION MUST PAY UNCLE SAM

Collector of Internal Revenue Ben Goodell yesterday cautioned religious, educational and charitable organizations regarding the admission tax liability attached to the usual series of benefit entertainments which are staged during the Christmas holidays.

The collector pointed out that, while many of these entertainments are tax-exempt, the mere fact that the organization giving the benefit performance is a purely charitable institution does not control the tax liability, for the character of the beneficiary must be taken into consideration.

Failure to make a report and pay admission tax involves a fine of $1,000 and Collector Goodell advises all organizations that plan to give benefit entertainments to consult with the internal revenue office in order that they may not, through misinterpretation of the revenue laws, pay themselves liable to the $1,000 penalty.

HANDWRITING IS MEDICAL SEARCH LIGHT

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 14.—Handwriting analysis as a means of diagnosis of disease and revealing emotional characteristics is the latest field of exploration entered by Dr. Albert E. Abrams, San Francisco physician and scientist, noted for his "blood test" methods of determining parentage.

It was announced today from Dr. Abrams' laboratory here that he had shown in a series of research experiments that electronic vibrations, such as he claims are detected by his "oscillograph" in the blood, are transmitted to handwriting.

Writing of various persons already has been identified by this means, it was said.

Manuscripts of men dead many years have been studied in this manner, including Edgar Allan Poe and Samuel Johnson. Interesting revelations regarding them, it was claimed, were made by the tell-tale vibrations.

Just how the study of handwriting may be carried is not known. It was pointed out, however, that it may prove of even greater value in criminology than in medicine.

MAMMOTH CAKE TO FEATURE CIRCUS

To Be Auctioned for the Tuesday Afternoon Club Building Fund

Hazen J. Titus, the man who will build in Glendale a factory for his famous fruit cakes that have been spread over the entire globe, is baking a mammoth fruit cake for the Tuesday Afternoon Club's society circus. This cake will cost in the neighborhood of $100 to manufacture, and on top there will be reproduced a picture of the new clubhouse, made strictly of sugar.

It is the intention of those who are managing this society circus to auction this cake off and the proceeds will go to the club building fund.

In addition to this, Mr. Titus will have young ladies from his institution distributing samples of his cake and it is hoped that everyone who goes to the Elks' clubhouse that night will get a sample of this wonderful fruit cake.

The Pendroy Dry Goods company have taken the sale of these cakes and in the next few days there will be a great display in the Pendroy show windows.

Captain D. Ripley Jackson, the chamber of commerce and Roy L. Kent have been putting forth every effort to get this wonderful establishment located in Glendale. Other cities of Southern California have made Mr. Titus wonderful offers but he did not wish to leave his "first love"—Glendale, and it is almost certain that this factory will be located here, which will mean a great deal to this city.

COMMANDERY TO SPEED UP ITS PROGRAM

Intensive Work Is in Progress to Be Ready for Year's End

Intensive work is being done by the Glendale Commandery, Knights Templar, in order to finish its program and clean the slate before its official year ends. Monday night members convened at 5:15 and began work on the Order of the Red Cross for a class of nine, composed of Frederick Becker, Arthur Shadley, of Burbank, George Linsday, C. W. Ingledue, Harry Mac Nair, R. W. Meeker, Ray Bentley, Roger Bentley, and Curtis Vining. This is said to be the largest class ever taken through the Commander. At 6:30 a dinner was served, covers being laid for 55. It proved a very pleasant social affair and its conclusion work was resumed and the Order of Malta was given.

That this class may be carried through the entire work, special meetings will be held, the first of these being called for Friday evening of the present week, when a dinner will be served at 6:30 and work on the Order of the Temple will be given.

All resident and visiting Knights Templar are invited to be present.

Next Sunday the Commandery will participate in the annual Knights Templar field day, which will be held under the auspices of the Hollywood Commandery. It will begin with a big Knights Templar parade at 11 a. m. starting from the Masonic Temple at the corner of Highland and Hollywood boulevard. All the Commanderies of Southern California will be represented, the knights bearing in uniform and their bands playing. The parade will move east on Hollywood boulevard to Vine street, where it will disband and the knights will take auto for Griffith park where a family picnic dinner will be enjoyed, each family bringing its own dinner and Hollywood furnishing the coffee.

The afternoon will be devoted to a competitive drill tournament under two classifications. In class A will be included all the Commanderies whose commandants have been previously entered in one of these competitions. Class B will take in the novices and the second half teams of some of the big Commanderies. Interest will center in the class. A competitor wherever will be found the Commandery of Hollywood, Los Angeles, Pasadena, Long Beach and other big organizations.

The Glendale Commandery is inviting all resident knights who are not members of participating Commanderies to march with it. The organization now has a membership of 130 knights.

Truths in Epigram

Critics are sentinels in the grand army of letters, stationed at the corners of newspapers and reviews to challenge every new author.—Long fellow.

Every character is the joint product of nature and nurture.—Garfield.

No cord or cable can draw so forcibly or bind so fast as love can do with only a single thread.—Bacon.

THE AMIABLE "TIGER"

The venerable Clemenceau, once premier of France and known as "Tiger," has been tamed appreciably. Perhaps this is due to a sudden realization that a man of eighty years really is old. Or it may be that release from the cares of office has permitted the severity of his mood to relax. He has been reported as snarling only once recently. This was at a reporter who had awakened him to ask a trivial question and was regarded as justifiable.

It is interesting to know that Clemenceau is coming to this country to lecture. He says his purpose is "to create a state of mind in the United States which will permit in the future, negotiations between public bodies leading to understandings capable of producing results." In his opinion the peace of Europe is based on friendly relations among America, England and France. His task is to make Americans understand this.

Doubtless the object is laudable. Nevertheless it is difficult to see how anything new is to be said concerning it. If there is error in the view he expresses, it is that powers that have a right to a voice are left out of consideration. Every nation desires to be a party to conferences concerning their own welfare and destiny. The great powers, were they to assume to rule the lesser, would not be implicitly trusted. The fact is to be noted, with regret, that they do not fully trust each other. They are permitting selfish interests to force them apart, and into attitudes that, while not hostile, still lack much of friendliness.

Why may not "negotiations between public bodies" lead to understandings now? It must be because the element of good faith either is lacking, or suspected of being so. Thus honesty as between nations becomes as important as a reasonable degree of unselfishness. There never could be a common understanding brought about by a compact unmarked by an element of altruism. If nations continue, each to look out for itself, and this alone, then all the talking that Clemenceau can do, will be, although possibly pleasing, a wholly ineffective expenditure of energy.

THE RED CROSS

The annual roll call of the Red Cross is now in progress. Ready to answer "Here" is the citizen who appreciates devotion to good work, who believes in broad and willing charity, and admires courage and zeal. The Red Cross stands for a purpose that makes universal appeal. It is for the relief of distress everywhere. There is no point too distant for it to reach. There can be no calamity so great that Red Cross workers will not be there seeking to ease pain, to give comfort and sustenance. The contributor to this benign organization knows that his gift goes to an agency that will apply it with discretion. Nor does he know but that he is contributing directly to the welfare of his own community, nor that he himself may not be among the sufferers needing help. Great catastrophes come unheralded. They come borne by terrible winds, or in the form of flames they devastate populous areas. But when they do come, and in whatever shape the visitation, it is the policy of the Red Cross to be ready.

The record made in the world war was magnificent. It crowned a record already without parallel or efficiency. The organization had to be expanded to meet the emergency, and the liberality of the public permitted this to be done. It has been found necessary, due to the after-effects of war, to maintain the plane of operations at nearly the level attained in those troubled days. Regardless of the demand created by military service, and still exigent, there is constant demand from other sources, rising occasionally to tremendous force.

So it is well to bear in mind that the Red Cross roll call is now in progress; that response must be liberal if the splendid, essential work is to go on.

THE NEW ITALY

Italy seems to have leaped in a day into the status of order, industry and dignity. Premier Mussolini gives every evidence of being a man of high capacity, determination, vision and a sense of justice. His serving of notice on England and France that in consultation over matters of interest to Italy, the Italian government does not propose to be ignored, is not presumption. It strikes the judgment as indicating a course that Mussolini has earned the right to take. There is an Italy now, of fixed purpose, and determination. In the family of nations its place is with the rest of the powers of Europe.

Mussolini appears to undertake the guidance of Italy much in the way a city manager would control the municipal organization under his charge. He gives direct orders, or he thrusts responsibility upon subordinates whom he trusts. There is not one of these but knows that his tenure of office depends upon performance of duty. Therefore the duties are being performed. Men and officials in the government employ have to work. There are no soft jobs under Mussolini. Himself a worker, he has no patience with the one who would shirk. His main idea evidently is to create prosperity in the nation. Intrinsically Italy has the right to be prosperous. All that it lacked was system, application, the routing of the forces of discontent. It needed a head, a better head than the royal line afforded. Mussolini arrived with precisely the head that was needed. His brains rule Italy, and Italy has a chance for development economically, which means growth in world importance as well as material success at home.

WAR ON GAMBLERS

The downfall of a Los Angeles municipal employee, ascribed to his gambling on the races, has been the means of starting a police war upon the class known as bookmakers. The idea is so commendable that it ought to have become a working plan even in the absence of the broad hint contained in the creation of a specific instance of crime. The bookmaker makes his living by taking in money and giving out less. This, so far, has the aspect of any ordinary transaction for purposes of gain. The resemblance goes no further. In legitimate trade something is given for the money; there is a process of exchange, perhaps profitable to everybody concerned. It is the habit of the bookmaker to give nothing for the mopey he receives. Occasionally he has to return it, along with an additional sum. This is a rare operation. Were such not the case, the bookmaker soon would cease from the making of books.

The bookmaker is a professional layer of wages. Usually he does not operate with his own capital but is a mere agent. His business is not rated either as sound commercially, or in any way respectable. It is carried on for the most part in a furtive style, free as possible from police scrutiny. Its habitat is the alley or the backroom. In sections where horse-racing is taboo, because of having fallen into the hands of gambling sharks, all dealing with the bookmaker must be stealthy. The very atmosphere in which the operator thrives becomes suggestive of crime. Often the poor dupe who supposes the money has its own reasons for avoiding publicity. He is using stolen money, or money that he has no right to waste.

It is not good for society when a set of drones is permitted to fatten on the credulity of the morally weak. Bookmakers richly merit being driven out, and even harassed to the desperate extent of having to work for a living, a course distinctly against their principles.

With singular unanimity all propositions for advancement in official salaries were voted down. This affected both city and county, and even the state. It is not to be denied, however, that in view of services rendered, the present pay in many instances is so small as to seem not only inadequate but mean.

Gallantry is not dead, far from it, but its influence is not so manifest in the courts as formerly. When a woman violates the speed laws she pays a fine or goes to jail. The equality for which such yearning has been expressed seems to have arrived.

For Your Christmas Plans

By DR. FRANK CRANE

To All My Friends:

This letter is an attempt to lay upon your heart a case which ought to make the strongest appeal to your sympathy and intelligent interest.

You are planning for your own children about you something that shall make this Christmas brighter. But can you not let into the circle of your benevolence the great swarm of motherless, fatherless and homeless children of the Near East?

There are 110,000 orphans. Their wistful and despairing eyes have nowhere to look but to America. The Near East Relief is a national organization in this country that furnishes a dependable means for reaching this great multitude.

It is not a disordered and merely sentimental movement. The Near East committee is incorporated by act of congress, and the annual reports of its work and finances are made to congress. Its field of operation is Constantinople and the large territory that lies roundabout that center of human misery.

It has been endorsed by President Harding, by congress, by representatives of all religious and commercial, educational and social organizations.

It has already saved at least one million women and children from starvation. It maintains thirty-eight hospitals where 88,401 patients were listed in the last monthly report. It supports 125 orphans.

It brings to the business of human health the best expert intelligence and care.

May we not at this Christmas season be justified in asking a portion of your means for this vital cause? It is by such helpful movements as this that America best establishes her moral influence throughout the world.

Write to "Near East Relief, 151 Fifth Avenue, New York."

THE LISTENING POST

By James W. Foley

"Come in!"
Two friendly words.
indicating welcome.
Bidding you enter and partake of what refreshment there may be.

If they are said with sincerity, there is comfort and reassurance in them.
It may be cold outside.
The weather may be indeterminate.
Or the hallway may be uninviting.
The world may seem for the time being unfriendly.

"Come in!"
The door is opened and there is warmth and friendliness inside.
You are bidden a welcome.

The aspect of the world changes.
Instead of being unfriendly it is friendly again.

Just because somebody said "Come in!"

It may have happened to you.
Misfortune and misfortune.
You may have felt the slings and arrows of outrageous fortune.
You may be lonesome and worn.

Weary of many things.
Of struggle and trial.

The doors of friendly folk may be many but they may be closed to you.
People are often busy.
And unthinking.
Not unfriendly but unthinking.
And they may not dream of the misfortune and sorrow about them.

There is a lot of crustiness in life that is not intended.

It is the result of thoughtlessness.

We have our own trials.

And they occupy us to the exclusion of other things.

We are not deliberately unfriendly.

We are thoughtless.

And we don't say "Come in" as sincerely as we should.

For all about us are guests who should be made welcome.

And consideration for them would relieve us of our own little trials.

So when there is a timid knock on the door.

When there is a frightened soul at the portals.

Look up.

Smile.

And bid them "come in!"

And there are other guests, too.
Friendly and benevolent impulses.
Dreams of better and nobler things.
Fine ideals.

All knocking at the door of the mind.

And we should bid them "Come in!"

They will refresh us.

Renew us in spirit.

Encourage us to go on.

But not if they are kept out on the porch.

Or in the hallway.

We have to open the door of the mind and heart.

Bid them welcome.

"Come in!"

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

By HENRY JAMES

Thoughts of armistice day are various. It marks the recurring anniversary of the close of the greatest of wars. Nevertheless it does not incite to feelings of unmixed joy. A query comes to mind as to what the war accomplished, and what it might have accomplished. There rushes to recollection the fact that soldiers wept when they were ordered to desist. Having started something, it was their belief that they should have been permitted to finish it. They had gone into a war to end war.

The fate of nations was taken from the hands of the military and placed in the hands of diplomats. It is not presumption to state that diplomacy blundered then, and that it has continued to blunder. Even at this moment Europe is armed and tiptoe for the signal to advance to new conflict.

Conditions of settlement were such as to be impossible, in the circumstances, of fulfillment. Germany was instructed to make certain payments. Its refusal to abide by the terms is based on the allegation that it cannot do so. And all the cunning of diplomacy so far engaged, has been unable to ascertain whether Germany is telling the truth.

The Turks were driven from Europe, apparently for such time as they chose to stay out. Now they come back, and so wide is the breach between former allies, that there is no united front to meet the intruders. The powers that ought to be acting in harmony, are back to the pre-war basis of every nation for itself. The devil may catch the hindmost or he may catch the whole lot.

There was a time when the United States might have exercised a beneficial influence, and even stabilized the affairs of Europe. It declined any part of the responsibility, withdrawing with the job but partly done.

Armistice day meant the saving of many lives at the time, rather than the general security of millions more of lives for an indefinite time.

Ships of one American line have registered under the flag of Panama in order to be able to furnish passengers with liquor. This is a single phase among many marking the effort to extend prohibition laws to the high seas. It must have some application to the issue, but will be construed in different ways according to the personal point of view.

The writer of a column is certain to receive anonymous letters. Such as are hostile are thrown away after a casual glance. But some are friendly, and concerning these curiosity is aroused, and one wonders at the absence of signature.

It is stated that the heiress to the Gates fortune of many millions will marry a young man who has no money worth mentioning. He has, however, many fine qualities. The only reason given for the course of the girl is that they love each other. Perhaps no better reason could be found, old-fashioned to be sure, but sound.

Dr. Albert Einstein has received the Nobel physics prize. The precise reason is not given in dispatches. Concerning the achievements of Einstein up to the time he promulgated the theory of relativity, little is known outside the scientific world.

If the prize was awarded by reason of the theory mentioned, the committee members evidently desire to get into the small group of twelve intellectuals, that according to Einstein himself, embraces all the minds capable of grasping his discovery.

After a wedded life of forty years, a man had just procured a divorce from his wife, aged 72. The complaint virtually ascribes to her the qualities of a vamp.

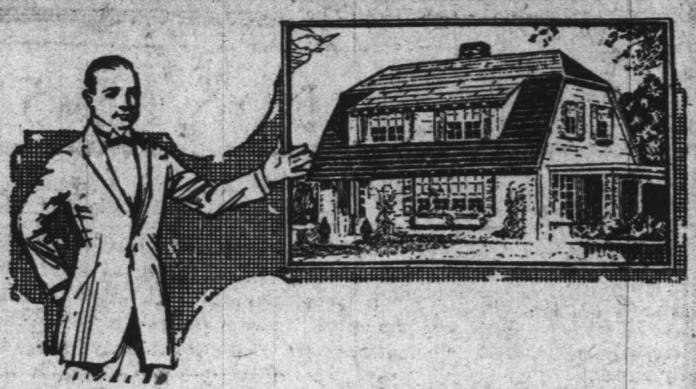

Somehow, laying aside the dolorous circumstance that a family has gone to smash, the defendant's lingering touch of youth and frivolity ought to be a rebuke to the ladies who begin to fret under the burden of years when they have acquired thirty or so. The future may be more colorful than they think possible.

Recently a man reputed to have a large income was arrested in this state and taken back to Illinois for trial. The charge against him is that he did not play square in the matter of tax concealing his income and characterizing the amount of his fortune.

Determination of the guilt of the accused rests, of course, with the courts. If guilty he must not expect a wide and acute sympathy, for the result would disappoint him. Nobody emits a whoop of joy as he divides his spot cash with a government, however benign. The little fellow, working for a salary, and needing every cent of it, can't evade payment. If he tries to do so, an examination of his employer's books gives him away. It follows that he is just sore enough to want the big fellow put through the legal paces.

In the course of human events every editorial writer has to formulate his Thanksgiving expression, fervid and comprehensive, just before the day the turkey is baked. The matter is mentioned now lest

A HOME OF ARISTOCRATIC APPEARANCE

In the language of the day, this house has "class." In other words, it has distinction, a rich and aristocratic appearance. It will look well on any street and stand out from its neighbors. Yet it is not at all expensive to build.

It is a duplex house and provides the following accommodations for two families: kitchen, dining-room, living-room, two bedrooms and a sleeping porch.

LACK OF RELIGION BASE OF JUVENILE DELINQUENCY

So Says L. A. County Probation Officer at Eagle Rock

"Lack of belief in God brought more juvenile delinquency in the last year than any other known cause," emphatically declared Earl W. Rumsey, assistant probation officer of Los Angeles County in an interesting talk to the Boy Scouts leaders last evening at the Eagle Rock Central School.

Continuing his talk on juvenile delinquency, Mr. Rumsey said in part that the boy of twelve today knows 100 per cent more than you and I did at the age of sixteen. Boys work is one of the greatest works in the world but in order to be successful in it the social worker must make himself untrusting and must make great sacrifices.

The Boy Scout organization is the most wonderful institution I have ever come in contact with for developing character and good citizenship. Every boy who has had Boy Scout training will know more about citizenship and how to vote than any of us."

According to Mr. Rumsey the Juvenile Court handled 51,474 cases in Los Angeles County alone during the past year. Vagrancy among children is the fastest growing and greatest problem the probation officers have to deal with. It is the greatest menace the country has.

The meeting of the scout leaders was well attended and considerable business was transacted. E. B. Thomas, principal of the John Muir School at Burbank was chosen to be the leading leader and for a few minutes the men joined in a jaw-exercising contest that would be hard to beat. The next meeting of the "Troop" Leaders' Roundtable will be held at Burbank December 13th. Rev. C. Kelly, secretary of the Glendale District, Y. M. C. A. will talk on scouting, religion and the Y. M. C. A. work. Leonard F. Collins, superintendent of schools at Burbank will demonstrate to the leaders how to tell a story.

Give some people a bite of an apple and they'll want everything but the core.

PANNING WITH FARRELL

HARVARD'S GREAT FOOTBALL SYSTEM

By HENRY L. FARRELL
United Press Sports Editor

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—Much is heard in the days of advanced football about the "Harvard system." Coaches and the general run of fans are greatly interested in the system which Percy Haughton introduced at Cambridge, by which the Crimson was elevated to a position of perhaps the greatest of all football institutions.

The Harvard system is nothing but perfect instruction in fundamentals, handling the ball and following the ball," a prominent coach who knows much about the system said this season.

"Did you ever see a Harvard back fumble a ball and did, you ever see an opposing player fumble when there weren't two or three Crimson sweaters in a position to fall on the ball?" another coach gav

Harvard has a system of coaching that wastes not a minute from the time the squad is called out for the first process of elimination until the season is over. Every man is given time through instruction in his individual duties and the veteran linemen are all acting coaches in that they help green material next to them.

It is said that Harvard has records extending back years on what every quarterback has done under certain circumstances. Quarterback is picked with the brain equipment of the candidate as the first consideration. When a regular varsity quarter is selected, he is given the records of his predecessors with the criticism of their treatment and it is up to him to get the benefit of all their experiences.

The Harvard idea is primarily to get a good quarterback and protect him at all costs. In the majority of cases a Harvard quarterback will make a fair catch on a punt when he might have run it back fifteen or twenty yards. The idea is to keep his head clear, so that he will have possession of all his faculties when the important moment comes.

To illustrate the point. In the Harvard-Centre game last year, Mr. McMillin, the Centre quarterback, was severely criticized for several obvious pieces of bad judgment. After the game he said he didn't remember a thing for about ten minutes of play after being felled by a terrific tackle.

Even though it has become almost a matter of form to expect a Harvard quarter to make fair catches, yet the opposition cannot depend on it. Last year in the Harvard-Yale game, Buell made fair catches on every punt in his territory. Late in the game the Yale forwards were slow getting down under the punt to save themselves a fruitless run and a pull up for a fair catch. Buell fumbled them and ran 45 yards with the ball, paving the way for a touchdown.

The results of the system are well known. Harvard always has a smart team and the players are so well protected that they seldom have serious injuries at Cambridge, while Yale, on the other hand, seems invariably to have several star players on the sideline.

Harvard has not had anything near like the material that Yale has had in the past three years, but still Harvard seems able to beat the Eli's.

AT THE THEATRES

CLARENCE' IS AT T. D. & L. TODAY

TAILOR MADE MAN HAS HARD JOB IN FILM

Wally Reid's latest and best picture, "Clarence," a William De Mille production, is at the T. D. & L. today. It is a comedy, a riot of fun—a truly great show with Wally as you know him and like him best. William De Mille directed the picture and beautiful Agnes Ayres is the girl in the story. Just about everything one could ask for is found in this picture and the story is guaranteed to bring laughing tears and splitting sides.

"Alabama and the Forty Thieves" a special added comedy, make this show even still more hilarious than ever.

It is a dandy for the blues—or anything that looks like trouble—it just clears it all away and you see just the funny side of life. It'll do everyone good. Go and take the whole family.

Any careful observer will be convinced that a screen star's life is a hard one. For instance, in "A Tailor Made Man," Charles Ray has a splendid United Artists production, it will be noted that Mr. Ray has numerous disagreeable obstacles to overcome.

At the Glendale theater, where the above-named excellent film comedy drama is flickering across the screen, the following facts present themselves:

Mr. Ray is obliged to withstand the attentions of four unusually beautiful leading women—Ethel Grandin, Jacqueline Logan, Irene Lentz and Charlotte Pierce.

He is obliged to wear handsome evening clothes, including a fur-collared overcoat, and numerous other delectable garments suitable for various hours and occasions. It is a hard lot to attend a so-cietry reception and partake of numerous confections and cooling drinks, to say nothing of delicious ice cream.

Add to this the "natural" human nature at getting to disappoint three prospects for one's hand and heart by marrying the fourth—and, at that, the one the others least expected you to wed—and one readily perceives a last and crowning hardship.

Tickets for both the dinner and dance are $1 and everyone attending is assured of having a wonderful time.

If you want strictly tailor-made garments, see FRED MINDEN, 108 South Maryland—Adv.

KNOW YOUR PREJUDICES

By H. ADDINGTON BRUCE

Author of "The Middle of Personality," "Handicaps of Childhood," Etc. (Copyright, 1922, by The Associated Newspapers) Prejudices, everybody is well aware are among the most hateful and injurious of things. They make for personal and social misery. They are breeders of dangerous animosities. They have caused whole races to be persecuted. They have plunged nations into wars.

In communities they set class against class, group against group. And besides bringing injury to those toward whom they are directed, they are harmful to all entertainment. They prevent that clear thinking indispensable to true progress. They may so obscure the judgment as to interfere markedly with one's prospects in life.

For these and many, many other reasons it is important for all of us to rid our minds of prejudices so far as possible. To that end the first indispensable step is closely to scrutinize one's beliefs, particularly as regards people, races and controversial themes, with a view to determining whether those beliefs have a rational basis or whether their roots are mere prejudice.

Suppose, for example, that one entertains a strong dislike for a certain religious denomination and the adherents thereof. One may well put to one's self, such questions as:

"Do I really know, from personal study and investigation, that the doctrines of this denomination are false and misleading? Have I obtained conclusive evidence that its adherents behave in ways inimical to the public good?"

"Or do I feel as I do simply because I have been told certain things by my parents and other relatives when I was little? Or because I have always been closely associated with persons similarly biased against this denomination and have uncritically accepted the statements they've told?"

"Have I unconsciously absorbed and made my own ideas derived, if not from what I have heard, then from the kind of reading I have done, from literature read by me, because friends and acquaintances have been reading it? In short, have I taken my dislike of this particular denomination from my environment, much as a sponge takes up water?"

Too often, indeed, uncritical acceptance of the views of others is the starting point for prejudices which in time one may come to deem truths grounded in demonstrated fact. This is one of the great dangers of the universal human quality of suggestibility—a danger against which one cannot too sedulously guard one's self.

And it is safe to say that if people generally were to make it a rule to cross-examine themselves as to the real origins of beliefs which they are inclined to hold not merely firmly but even heatedly, prejudice would soon be doing far less harm.

For, as a result of such a habit of candid cross-examination, toleration and mutual good-will would be sure to grow amazingly, to the betterment of social relations and the stabilizing of civilization in a way impossible so long as sincere efforts at self-knowledge remain as rare as they are now.

OPPORTUNITY SALE STAGED BY J. C. POLLOCK & CO.

Another of those "opportunities" of good used cars was started by J. C. Pollock of the J. C. Pollock company, 208-10 West Broadway, Monday morning. Mr. Pollock has on hand a number of excellent used cars and these he is going to distribute among the auto buyers of Glendale at prices that will be a revelation to those who are fortunate enough to get in "on the ground floor."

Wherever needed the used cars that will be sold during this sale have been thoroughly gone over. The old and worn parts have been replaced with new ones and in the fullest sense of the word the cars have been put in excellent running shape.

The prices on all of these cars are right and Mr. Pollock is allowing the easiest kind of terms on all of the used machines in stock.

IF BACK HURTS BEGIN ON SALTS

Flush your kidneys
rationally if you eat too much meat.

No man or woman who eats lot of meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Too much meat may form uric acid, which clogs the kidneys so that they sluggish filter or strain only part of the waste and poison from the blood; they get sick. Rheumatism, head aches, liver trouble, nervousness, constipation, dizziness, sleeplessness, bladder disorders often come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts, or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular or scalding, get about four ounces of Jell Salts from any reliable pharmacist; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then, act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity, also to help neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer causes irritation, thus often ending bladder disorders.

Jell Salts is inexpensive and can not injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia water drink which everyone can take now and then to help keep the kidneys clean and the blood pure, thereby often preventing serious kidney complications.—Adv.

FRANCE PLANS TO REBUILD HER NAVY

PARIS, Nov. 14.—Aiming at the reconstitution of the French navy, bringing it up to its pre-war strength, but taking into account the limitation imposed by the Washington agreement, the minister of marine has elaborated a project calling for the expenditure of about $20,000,000 yearly for the next twenty years. The plan will be presented to the present session of the chamber of deputies.

Naval experts have recently been laying stress on the fact that France's sea defenses have never been so weak in comparison with other nations since Napoleonic times. Construction was suspended during the war and scores of ships are out of date. A report in the Petit Parisien sums up the total of France's fighting strength as six dreadnaughts, five light cruisers, 38 large destroyers, 41 submarines, with three old style cruisers of the Voltaire type (10,800 tons), ten others of a still older pattern and a dozen or so torpedo boats, practically useless.

As far as coast defense is concerned, none of the heavy batteries has a range beyond ten kilometers (less than four miles). Most of the hydroplanes and other aerial defense weapons are out of date. Comparing the navies of France and Italy, which is placed on the same footing as the Washington conference, it is found that while the number of dreadnaughts is the same for both, Italy has a much superior light surface fleet in number and quality.

The minister of marines proposes to ask for appropriations for tonnage annually. It will demand provision for 175,000 tons for cruisers; 330,000 tons for light cruisers, torpedo boats and destroyers and 65,000 tons for submarines and small coast defense craft.

WHAT'S THE MATTER WITH THE RETAILER?

By ROGER W. BABSON

Any reduction in the cost of living must come through better distribution rather than cheaper production.

It's strange how we concentrate on saving the pennies and let the dollars slip through our fingers. The officials of every manufacturing company in the country are hunting frantically for new ways to cut down the cost of production. They lie awake nights over a few cents an hour on labor, or an extra dollar or two on a ton of coal, or any other factor which may affect the cost of making this product. Once the goods are made and out of the factory, their efforts cease. The job of getting them to the ultimate consumer belongs to someone else.

All of us have become so engrossed with the problem of cutting down the cost of production that we have let distribution take care of itself. We have saved millions at the bung but we are losing millions on the spigot. In the past fifty years the amount of goods produced in the United States has increased probably ten times over. The number of workers necessary to produce those goods have increased only about two and a half times. This means that, owing to new machinery and better methods, the average worker today is able to turn out about four times as much goods in eight hours as the worker fifty years ago did in ten or twelve hours. Allow for the cost of the machinery, fuel, etc., and even then you find the average unit product cost today is less than half of what it used to be. In production we have made wonderful progress, because we have given most of our thought and effort to this.

Turn to distribution and we find no such progress. In fact, it is difficult to get the production worker to expect that the wages for a day's work would buy twice as much goods as it used to. If distribution had been improved as much as production, a day's wages would buy four times as much as it did fifty years ago. We all know that no such increase has taken place. In fact, it is debatable whether the average family today is even half again as well off as it used to be.

This does not mean that the retailer or the jobber or the carrier are hogging the difference. It means to a large extent that we have not developed our tastes so as to get the most for our money. It means that we have not educated the retailer and other distributors to most efficient methods of handling merchandise. In short we have not made the same progress in distributing goods as we have in their actual production.

We have been devoting our efforts to building better factories, to getting a great output from labor, to putting out more and better goods.

We have done very little toward the equally important problem of getting those goods to the ultimate consumer. The government is spending over $100,000,000 a year in research to help the manufacturers and farmers, but it has never even taken a census of the retailers. Hundreds of men are employed gathering information on the crops. Hundreds more are experimenting in chemical research for means of fighting pests and blights which destroy crops, and instructing the farmer in their use.

Similar work is being done for the manufacturer to help him find more efficient methods of production. A complete census of manufacturers is taken every five years, which shows the number of firms in each industry, their production, costs and profits. These things, of course, cost money, but they are worth it. They are largely responsible for the fact that the United States stands head and shoulders above any other country in the efficiency of its production. Is there any reason why we should not spend as much as to help the retail distributor on whom we must depend to get the goods to us?

So far most people have been content to point to the growth of the chain store and cooperative selling movements as indicating the shortcomings of the individual retailer and the crying need of the hour is that we all get behind the retailer and help him. If his methods are wrong it is our misfortune and it is up to the rest of us to show him a better way. He sells at least 85% of all the consumers' goods bought in the United States; he has more than a million stores in the country representing an investment of billions of dollars; in short, the individual retailer today is our main and vital artery of distribution.

Many people thoughtlessly say, "Do away with the individual retailer. Let the chain store or the cooperative association take his place." Anyone who studies the problem, however, must realize the shortsightedness of such a plan. Both the chain store and the cooperative association are all right, but would we care to give any single organization a monopoly of our distribution?

Then there is another phase of the retail situation for which you and I as consumers are to blame—the truth is we have grown lazy. We want our goods brought to the door, we want to run charge accounts, we want to have a wide variety of styles and grades of goods to pick from. When our wives select a pair of shoes they insist upon having twenty different lasts to choose from. When we buy sugar we prefer to have it come in a pasteboard box of the particular size which best suits our fancy; and so on throughout the line. But these things cost money. They are nice, but are they essential? If we knew we could get good shoes for 25 cents less, would we not be willing to do with a smaller variety to choose from? Certainly we should not grumble over the high cost of living, while we continually demand service which is increasing the cost of the things we buy.

The day is coming when this problem of distribution will be worked out. Just as the development of our producing machinery has taken years, so the development of the best distributing methods must take years to complete. Such changes come about gradually. Right now, however, there are three things we can do to help solve the problem and cut down retail prices.

(1) Urge the government to extend its services to the retail field so that the retailer can have the same statistical information and the same assistance from scientific research as the producer now enjoys.

(2) When buying, select popular grades of goods and avoid freakish styles. Encourage simplification of merchandise. Pay cash for your goods and if possible carry them home yourself. Don't insist upon ridiculous exchange privileges.

(3) Select one good retail store which will give you reliable service and stick to it. By this I mean take one grocery store, one meat market, one clothing store, etc. As long as the store you have selected gives you good service, stay with it and boost it. If consumers will follow this policy they will automatically build up the desirable stores and eliminate the inferior retailers who now are sustained only by a careless, transient trade.

"I know that many people are saying har dithings about the retailer just now. Much of the criticism, however, comes from those who do not understand the facts. Many retailers have been short-sighted in this period of readjustment. They have hesitated to take losses in order to keep pace with lower replacement costs. We, however, only do ourselves injury by carelessness and destructive criticism."

"The retailer has had tremendous problems, not the least of which have been the knocks we have given him. Most retailers are stumbling along, dazed by the rapid changes in conditions and blindly fearful of what the next season will bring forth. At present, we are on the eve of a general business improvement, but the retailer is not in a mental attitude to prepare for it. He should be going into the fall business like a fighting cock, but instead his attitude is fearful and defensive. He should be laying in a large stock of goods to meet the increased demand and guard against a shortage later this fall. It is up to us to get behind him and encourage him. Let us cease destructive criticism and turn our efforts toward building up the retailers who are giving us the most efficient service. Quit roasting and try boosting!"

RED CROSS ROLL CALL BEGINS IN THE CITY

Red Cross roll call started on Saturday, Armistice Day, but it being a holiday, people did not respond as they should. Work actively starts today and it is hoped that every Glendale citizen will become a member of this organization.

The local chapter has been authorized by the national society to accept contributions to the Near East Relief fund during the Red Cross drive. Any who care to donate to this fund are urged to do so through the Red Cross and they may make their contribution to any of the Red Cross solicitors or at the Glendale Savings bank, corner of Brand and Broadway.

EDITORIALS By the PEOPLE

Glendale, Oct. 19, 1922.

Editor Glendale Press,
Dear Sir: Please permit me as one of your subscribers to write in regard to a matter of interest to all people who live in our city: I refer to the subject of cost of electricity, which is up in our city.

Electricity advertising widely over the country that it is a place where electricity is produced more cheaply than elsewhere; that it is produced by waterfalls, the cheapest power available to mankind.

The municipal power and light department of Los Angeles has made figures public stating that it delivers electrical energy in the city of Los Angeles at a cost of 6-10 of one cent per kilowatt hour.

Our city of Glendale purchases electrical energy from the Southern California Edison company at a cost of less than 1 cent per kilowatt hour.

Our city then sells this electricity to us at a price of 14 cents per kilowatt hour. In other words, after allowing for various overhead charges, our city is making a profit upwards of 100 percent. This is a great robbery.

The city of Cleveland has a municipal electric light plant operated by steam; coal, costing about $8 per ton, is burned in the production of electricity, and great sums must be spent in the purchase of this fuel. Ever since Cleveland was started 12 years ago, that city has charged home owners only 3 cents per kilowatt hour for electricity. Even though the cost of fuel, labor, machinery, buildings and all other materials has advanced greatly in the past 12 years, the city of Cleveland has not raised its charges to consumers.

Glendale is not a producer of electricity. It is like a mere middleman; it buys for less than 1 cent a unit of electricity and sells to us for 14 cents per unit. This unreasonable policy has caused Glendale homes to be dark in the evenings; people are forced to turn off the lights, as cost of electricity is prohibitive, and heating of homes with electricity is simply out of the question.

Each time a collector brings our electric light bill to our door we are charged 20 cents. In Cleveland the collection charge is only 5 cents; in fact, bills are printed on postal cards and mailed. In Glendale we have the iniquitous monthly tax of 35 cents for meter rental. Cleveland charges nothing for use of meter.

Why do the intelligent people of Glendale tolerate such unintelligent management of our city's departments? We can have 3-cent light and our city can still make a good profit. If electricity is sold cheaper, our people will use more of it; larger sales at smaller margin means that the city will still earn good profit from its electric light business. With 3-cent electricity, we are helping to keep the electric heaters, our homes will become brighter evenings, and there will be less discontent and complaint on the part of our people.

Our city has no moral right to profit in the sale of a household necessity; there are many in our city who find it a heavy burden to pay the exorbitant charges. Those who hold office through suffrage of Glendale's citizens should take immediate steps to abolish the injustice.

No private corporation would be permitted to overcharge us as our city is doing, for there is a state utilities commission which fixes electric light rates of private corporations, and these rates are lower than the price which we have to pay to obtain it. California should be a place where electricity is not only produced cheaply, but also a place where electricity is sold cheaply, as well.

Yours very truly,
WM. J. MASAK.
321 Burchett St.
